IOWA COMMISSION ON THE STATUS OF WOMEN

36th Annual Towa (Momen's Hall of Fame Ceremony

STATE OF IOWA HISTORICAL BUILDING AUGUST 28, 2010 10:30 A.M.

Through responsive advocacy, the Iowa Commission on the Status of Women (ICSW) champions the success and well-being of women and girls in Iowa. An office within the Department of Human Rights, ICSW was established by the Iowa Legislature as a state agency in 1972 and is growing Iowa's opportunities so every woman and girl can reach her full potential.

Iowa Women's Hall of Fame

Many outstanding women have helped shape lowa, and many strong female leaders continue to contribute their talents and skills to improve the quality of life in this state. To recognize and honor these achievers and to provide visible examples for tomorrow's female leaders, the lowa Commission on the Status of Women established the lowa Women's Hall of Fame in 1975.

Each year, the Commission solicits nominations of women, living or deceased, who have had a significant impact on our society. The four inductees chosen yearly by a five-member selection committee and approved by the Commission are honored by the Governor and Lieutenant Governor at a special ceremony.

Cristine Wilson Medal for Equality and Justice

This medal recognizes and honors the accomplishments of Cristine Wilson, first chair of the lowa Commission on the Status of Women. First appointed to the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women in 1969, Wilson was a key force in the passage of the legislation that established the Commission as a statutory agency in 1972. During her service as chair, major legislation was passed that reduced sex discrimination and enhanced women's rights. Wilson's efforts were unceasing and her commitment was exemplary. The Cristine Wilson Medal for Equality and Justice is awarded selectively to an individual who has made significant contributions to the principles of equality and justice in the state of lowa.

Julia C. Addington

Julia C. Addington, born in 1829, was the first woman elected to public office in lowa and may have been the first woman in the United States to be elected to office when, in 1869, she was elected Superintendent of Schools in Mitchell County. She was 40 years old when she was elected on the "Bolters" ticket, a renegade faction of the Republican Party. Because of her gender, the legality of Addington assuming the position came into question. The lowa Attorney General ruled that there was no reason she could not hold the position of county school superintendent. Even after her election and the ruling by the lowa attorney general that her election was legal, not all of her colleagues were accepting of her. Prior to her election, she was the "preceptress" at the Cedar Valley Seminary in Osage and taught in Cedar Falls, Waterloo, and Des Moines. Her reputation in the education community was solid. Regardless of whether she was the first woman to hold office in the United States, it is certain that she accepted the call of a political party to run for office in a time when it took courage for women to do so. By accepting the call, she was setting herself up for certain scrutiny and probable scorn. While there is no evidence that Addington was an advocate for women's suffrage, she was one of many pioneering women in the fight for equal rights for women. Because of ill health, she retired in 1871. She lived and owned property in Stacyville, Iowa. Addington died on September 21, 1875 and is buried in Stacyville.

Mary Adelaide Lundby

Mary Adelaide Lundby, a long time public servant and forthright leader, stood for all lowans. Lundy served in the lowa House of Representatives from 1986-1994 and the lowa Senate from 1995-2009. Unfailingly loyal to friends and colleagues, she was willing to speak eloquently for causes and for people she believed in, without regard to the consequences, personal or political. Known as a formidable competitor, she was an advocate for issues concerning children, families, the environment, and conservation. As a Senator, she supported the REAP (Resource Enhancement and Protection) program, sometimes nearly single handedly securing funds for projects vital to the support of state parks and other natural resources that allowed lowans to appreciate their environment. She was an independent thinker around education issues and was considered by some the one vote that defeated the possible constitutional amendment prohibiting same-sex marriage. On the occasion of that vote, Lundby said she would never vote to put discrimination into the lowa constitution and spoke passionately about fair treatment. She was also a talented whistler and could be heard in the Chambers whistling a tune as she worked at her desk. Lundby was tireless in communicating with her constituents, many of whom received annual birthday or anniversary remembrances from their Senator. She was the first woman to be elected Speaker Pro-Tempore of the lowa House of Representatives and was the first woman Majority Leader and Minority Leader in the lowa Senate. Lundby was born on February 2, 1948 in Carroll and died January 17, 2009 after a three-year battle with cancer.

Ruby L. Sutton

Ruby L. Sutton, of Dubuque, is a champion of social justice. She moved to Dubuque in 1959; her family was one of only five African-American families at the time. Though she faced discrimination, Sutton chose to stay in the community and work to make Dubuque a welcoming community for people of color. Through both her work and volunteer involvement, she has touched thousands of people's lives. Sutton served for 36 years as the outreach manager of the Operation New View Community Action Agency and 21 years on the Dubuque Human Rights Commission. She played a pivotal role in the formation of the Dubuque Community Advisory Panel. Sutton has been a tireless community activist, and is a source of inspiration, motivation, and empowerment. She has held many board and leadership positions in community organizations. She received Dubuque's Telegraph Herald's First Citizen Award in 1984, YWCA Women of Achievement Award in 1987, NAACP First Humanitarian Award in 1989, which was later renamed in her honor, and Peacemaker Award in 1999, and the Friends of lowa Civil Rights Award in 2000. November 13th, 2009 was declared Ruby Sutton Day in Dubuque to recognize her many contributions to the community in areas of equality and justice. Born in 1932 in Lexington, Mississippi, Sutton grew up in Louisiana.

Charese Elizabeth Yanney

Charese Elizabeth Yanney, of Sioux City, is a legacy leader; she is willing to give of herself so that other women can achieve their goals. When she was 12, Yanney started working at the family business and volunteering as swimming teacher at the YWCA. That early work ethic served her well. After college graduation, Yanney spent four years as a junior high school teacher but gradually felt constrained by spending all day in the classroom. So, she decided to make a dramatic career change. She announced to her father that she was resigning her teaching position to work for the family business, Guarantee Roofing, Siding and Insulation Company. She became a partner in the firm a year later and today shares the responsibility of running the company with her father. Yanney tirelessly works to make her community and state better. She has served as chair of the Siouxland Chamber of Commerce, lowa Association of Business and Industry, United Way of Siouxland, Symphony Board, St. Luke's Hospital Board, and various state commissions and boards. Her leadership working on behalf of women and girls is perhaps most evident in the launch of two national award winning events for United Way of Siouxland: Women's Power Lunch and Women United, which have raised more than $516,000 for women and girls in Siouxland. To date, the Power Lunch has raised $231,000 that have been awarded to 68 single mothers. Women United, whose mission is to improve the quality of life for Siouxland youth 0 to 18, has awarded $285,000 awarded to 13 innovative programs. Yanney was born in 1949.

Brad Clark

Brad Clark is the Executive Director of One Colorado where he is leading the organization's efforts to secure and protect equality and opportunity for lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender Coloradans. He joined One Colorado in May 2010 as its first Executive Director. Clark heads to One Colorado after spearheading lowa's campaign for marriage equality as the campaign director for One Iowa. At One Iowa, Clark led the strategic legislative, electoral, grassroots, and public education campaign to achieve and protect marriage equality. During his tenure in Iowa, Clark grew One Iowa into a recognized force of thousands of members and tens of thousands of supporters. As the executive director of Iowa Safe Schools, he led a coalition of education, civil rights, labor, faith, and business leaders to help pass a comprehensive safe schools law and civil rights law to protect LGBT lowans from discrimination. Born and raised in lowa, Clark graduated from Central College in 2003 with a bachelor's in economics and political science. At Central, he served as the student body president as well as a member of Central College's board of trustees.
